

Transcription of Voice Mail Message
for Andrew J. Siegel
Transcribed by Irene Gaudreau
on July 22, 2008

July 16, 2008

Hi Andy, It's Jill Clark calling from Minneapolis. We worked on another small matter together. Um, I have a client who is anticipating some litigation against a reporter at the WCCO outlet here in Minneapolis and we wanted to make sure that, asap, that all video footage is preserved. I actually already left a message for Anthony Bongiorno but I guess he's in Court. Because he was in Court, I also made a call to, I think her name was Carrie, at the local station, just to give her actual notice that we're asking them to preserve the footage. She said we're not going to do anything until we hear from our attorney and, you know, I get all that, and I'm certainly not going to try to get in the way between you and your client. You guys do what you do. I just thought, since Bongiorno was in Court, it would be a shame if, you know, in this afternoon, or whatever, someone re-cycled a bunch of tapes and we didn't have it as a prac _____. The practical matter, once it's gone, _____ [garbled] it makes everything more complicated. So, um, let me give you the details, as well.

My client's name is Paul Stepnes [S-t-e-p-n-e-s]. He also is associated with 2857 Irving Avenue South, sometimes called a Contest, and sometimes called The Big House Give-away. So, he, um, had a package that aired about him, and about a business he was trying to do. Last evening, July 15th, 2008, aired on the 10 o'clock News, and I think it, maybe, was replayed later, um. There's something on the website today; I don't know if it's the same, I haven't been able to compare them. But, at any rate, know that at a minimum, there was an interview of my client, and me, yesterday. But as May Murphy reporting, there was an intern there. And then there was also a cameraman, and then [phone cuts off]

Second voicemail:

Hi Andy, Jill Clark finishing up. Sorry for the long voicemail. Anyway, we know there was a video interview of a contestant. We presume there was a video interview of a Peter Richal, Minneapolis Police Office, although it aired with just his badge, a picture of his badge. I'm not sure why that was. But, we don't know what other interview she did. Um. Anyway, we would like to have all of that preserved. Litigation is anticipated. And I, like I said, I already left a message for Bongiorno, um, and then I did call to the Station to, just to make sure they had actual notice. I didn't want, you know, um, without their, you know, without knowledge things to get destroyed before you guys could call and say "put a hold on it". So, if you want to call me, 763-417-9102. I'm actually not in my office right now. Um. And won't be in, much of tomorrow. Unfortunately. But I do have some drive time, and if you call, I'm sure my secretary could reach me. Jill Clark {J-i-l-l C-l-a-r-k}. And again, the individual's name is Paul Stepnes, S-t-e-p[as in Paul] - n-e-s. Thanks so much. Ba'bye.