Happy New Year!

are you asking any of MPD's finest to attend the meeting on 1.12

I was thinking of inviting Lt Rugel and/or Insp Martin to come and address the crowd while ballots are being counted if they wanted.

Hello Candidates,

Please read carefully and respond to me a.s.a.p, no later than 5pm on Mon 1.5.09.

We are in the final preparations for the elections meeting on Monday January 12, 2009 at 6pm at Jordan New Life Church (25th/Newton Ave N).

Please plan to arrive shortly before 6pm and be prepared to mingle with the JACC members from 6-630pm. This time will be an unstructured meet and greet time for you to approach the members and the members to approach you. The elections will start at 6:30pm sharp and you will have approximately 2 minutes to stand and address the voters to ask for their vote.

We will be giving each voter a pamphlet with a short bio of each candidate. I NEED YOU TO WRITE AND SEND ME YOUR SHORT BIO. It should be one paragraph, approximately 4 to 6 sentences. Feel free to write anything you'd like the readers to know about you, your background, your family & lifestyle, your experiences and skills that you will bring to the organization, etc.

Please respond via this email address. Also, if you have any questions about anything at all, feel free to email me, call me at 612-481-8457, or call Michael K. Browne, chair of the Nominations Committee at 612-388-9878.

Thank you and we will all be looking forward to Monday January 12.

Megan,

I will do my best here to provide a short bio but be advised that as an introvert (my Myers-Briggs personality type is INTJ) I do not enjoy talking about myself and I have an aversion to forced socialization. That means that the half-hour of mingling you mentioned will not only be difficult and painful for me, but probably unlikely to occur. I don't even mingle with people I know. Here is a short bio, based on an example that Dan provided for me. This was necessary because in all honesty, I have no idea why personal information of this nature should be of any interest to anyone. However, I do understand that people, in general, seem to have an idea that this type of thing matters, though I defy anyone to provide me a rational explanation as to why. After all, everyone knew President Bush's biography, as checkered as it was, but that didn't stop him from being elected and making a right mess of the entire world.

I was born in Richmond, VA and raised in CA (Anaheim), AZ (Glendale-Phoenix), NYC (Manhattan) and Northern NJ (Parsippany). Although I was trained as a classical musician (studied with the late Herbert Blayman, principal clarinetist with the NY Metropolitan Opera) and performed in Carnegie Hall in 1977, I have spent the last 19 years employed at Ameriprise Financial. Over the years I have held the positions of Business Analyst, Project Manager, Training Designer, Systems Service Manager and Process Control Manager. I have designed, led and participated in systems, records and financial audits, developed and delivered training programs for domestic and offshore staff (Philippines and India) and been responsible for regulatory oversight and testing for both state and federal regulatory agencies as well as the corporate general counsel, specifically in the areas of financial accounting and financial books and records. I have lived in Minneapolis since 1983 and been a Jordan resident since 2000. I am the third of five children. My favorite saying (currently) is "I am not interested in the details of your failure" which recently replaced "I will not suffer fools gladly but I will gladly see fools suffer". My favorite book is "With Charity Towards None" which is a collection of essays by Florence King. I have had only one personal hero in my life and that is me. Currently, my hobby is the ongoing renovation of the house I live in on Sheridan Avenue. I am the chairperson of the 26th Avenue Greenway Steering Committee.

Feel free to use anything in this you like and let me know if you need anything else.

Thanks to you and the rest of the committee for the work you are doing to make this a free and fair election, and yes, the information regarding my recent work experience is meant to strike a note of confidence for the voting members and a note of fear for certain current and outgoing board members.

Bob

Hi Bob,

Thanks for getting back to me - hey by the way - we have a neat little something in common, sort of - you were born in VA, and raised in CA! - I was born in CA and raised in VA! (monterey and then Virginia Beach area) - Now we are both in Mpls - I love learning little bits of common interest about people.

Anyways - let me just say that I wish I could make the mingling easier for you - it's basically just a way to fill the time that it is going to take to get folks in the door and signed up, etc. Feel free to use the mingling time however you'd like - if it's easier for you to put your financial expertise down on a little business card type paper and pass that out to folks as they come in the room feel free to do that. Your sense of humor is also a good ice breaker, perhaps focusing and talking about your financial background and how you hope to bring that to JACC would be something easy to talk about.

Thanks for getting me this bio info - I will probably pull a few details out to shorten it a little bit but will be sure to include the experience that you have to offer.

Thanks, see you in a bit,

MG

Subject: Vote Monday January 12th (JACC rescheduled elections)

Citizens for a Better Jordan Area Community Council (JACC)

More than 50 of your neighbors in the Jordan neighborhood have signed a petition protesting the actions of the current JACC leadership. The candidates listed below have pledged to support the following "platform" to bring back honesty, transparency and a focus on making the Jordan neighborhood a better place for its residents, property owners and business owners (all of whom constitute the "members" of JACC).

The Platform

- 1. Capital and economic investment in Jordan will be aggressively pursued, to include the 26th Avenue Greenway, utilization of our closed neighborhood schools, and completion of the three cluster projects (25th & James Avenue, Cottage Park, and 27th & Penn Avenue).
- 2. Programs and organizations that work with neighborhood youth will be supported, and we will work aggressively to create more youth opportunities for jobs, mentoring and education within our community.
- 3. The NRP Phase II Plan adopted by the entire neighborhood in 2005 will be the strategic plan for the neighborhood with additions/modifications approved by JACC members.
- 4. Community meetings will be held on a regular basis both to inform JACC members and to seek input from them.
- 5. Neighborhood communications (newsletter) will resume as soon as funding is available.
- 6. New funding will be actively pursued.
- 7. The current bylaws, adopted in November 2003, will be followed without exception unless and until modified in accordance with the Articles of Incorporation and the JACC bylaws.
- 8. All written records of the organization (including financial records, minutes of meetings, contracts and reports to funders) will be available for examination by JACC members.
- 9. There will be no closed board meetings except to discuss personnel evaluations, salary decisions (salaries will be made public once decided) and legal actions involving JACC.
- 10. Whenever possible, contracts committing JACC to financial or legal liability will be approved by vote of the entire board at a regularly scheduled board meeting following a period of comment by the general membership.
- 11. JACC staff will receive compensation commensurate with salaries at other neighborhood organizations where duties and responsibilities are similar. The job performance of all staff will be evaluated annually and reviewed by the entire board.

VOTE FOR

David Haddy	Todd Heintz
Tyrone Jaramillo	Robert Hodson
Anne McCandless	Vladimir Monroe

Please attend the rescheduled elections on Monday January 12th 2009, at 6 :00 p.m. at Jordan New Life Church at 26th and Newton Ave. N and vote for the above six candidates. Your vote will make JACC once again an organization that responds to its members in an open and honest way and that safeguards the funds entrusted to it.

Subject: Ethics Committee Meeting

Madam Chair,

Thank you for the invitation you sent today, 01/05/09, to meet with the Ethics Committee. Unfortunately I am busy both Wednesday and Thursday evening. Upon reviewing my calendar I can advise that the first date I am available is January 20th. I will also be available to meet on January 27th and February 3rd. Feel free to choose any of those dates and advise me of your choice. While I regret any difficulty you may be having in scheduling this meeting, I would remind Madam Chair that my participation as JACC Housing Committee Chair as well as participation on the Green Team, Greenway Steering Committee and Nominating Committee in addition to my personal work schedule and attendance at JACC Board meetings leaves me with very little unscheduled time. Had this matter been addressed in a timely manner this scheduling difficulty might not exist.

I also remind Madam Chair that the Ethics Committee Chair announced on 12/16/08 that he would present his finding to the board chair without the benefit of meeting with the grievant and in violation of the process established in the organizational bylaws and that he took this action the day after I rejected his email solicitation for money. As a result, I have little expectation that any meeting with this ethics committee will amount to much more than window dressing. The Ethics Committee Chair has made it apparent by his action on 12/16/08 that he has little interest in delivering a fair decision and in fact intends to deliver a personal decision based on his feelings in regard to my rejection of his grossly inappropriate solicitation for money.

Please let me know which of the above dates will work for you and the committee to meet with me.

Mr. Rother,

I am aware this is Grievance #11 that you submitted to the Board. As chair of the Ethics Committee I take this very seriously and will make a final report to the Board at a later meeting. It saddens me again, that instead of addressing the recent concern I had with the Board meeting you send another copy of your grievance. My initial e-mail was simply to create awareness. As a Director we are responsible for our community. They look to us for solutions to problems that are current. All I am asking is for all of us to unify at same time respecting individual talents and differences. My intentions were not to offend you in any way.

On a different note while I am already e-mailing you can you contribute to the T-Shirt Fund for the Boys and Girls Club's girls basketball team. We currently have raised $5,000 and are need of an additional $5,000 so anything you or your company can contribute would be a blessing.

Thank you in advance for any contribution you may give.

The sign-in sheets should include everyone who attends, regardless of their voting eligibility. I don't think we want a separate sign-in sheet for guests (because it would complicate things (we'd have either four or six sign-in sheets going at one time) and those of us determining eligibility will have a tougher time keeping everything flowing and clear. There will be other attendees who can't vote beside our special guests, and we don't know how many that might be.

Everyone should sign in on the regular sign-in sheet, then we should check their address and verify their credentials (drivers license or whatever they bring) to determine eligibility, hand out the appropriate name tag and packet and go on to the next person.

Jerry,

1. Will you please let the Nominations Committee know when JACC has paid Do-Good.biz's invoice. The Committee took the steps necessary to have NRP deposit their contribution into JACC's account. They did an excellent job and the Committee would like to see that their invoice is promptly paid.
2. Would you please bring pens to next Monday's election for Members to use. Also, the committee would like you to bring clipboards, and large tape for hanging paper on the wall. Thank you.
3. We are still using the applications. The committee decided that after the elections are final, we will turn in all records.

Thank you,

When you get a chance, can you e-mail me the short bio you would like to be on the handout for the JACC elections. Please try to keep it to 4-6 sentences.

Ideally, it would be good to get it from you before the end of the day tomorrow (5PM). If you are not able to put one together in that time frame, the Nominations Committee will put one together for you using the information you submitted in your application.

Thank you,

I will alert the group when I send out the check for the vendor. I am not sure if I will be able to attend the elections as I have another commitment on my calendar. However I will gather whatever materials we have on deck. I know off hand we do not have a ton of clipboards. I can drop off what I have at the church on Monday afternoon.

Subject: Willful Blindness and CPAs

Date: Wed, 7 Jan 2009 11:08:14 -0600

Here is a link to an article on the AICPA website regarding the role and responsibilities of CPAs in the maintenance of internal financial controls <http://www.aicpa.org/pubs/tpcpa/feb2004/internal.htm>. I have pasted the article into this note as well and have highlighted the most appropriate passage in the text. I believe that Ms. Gallas is guilty of willful blindness, at the very least. Willful blindness describes a failure of due diligence and in Ms. Gallas' case is represented by her preparation of obviously fraudulent or misleading ledger entries. While I understand that this concept may be somewhat foreign to CPAs it has been a fixture in the brokerage business for many years. The defense of "following the instructions of the client" was attempted by the CPAs and auditors at Arthur Andersen Cos. and ultimately led to their defeat in federal court and the dismantling of their organization. There does not need to be a specific regulation for the courts to find Ms. Gallas responsible for her failure to alert the board to this situation. She certainly met with the full board enough times to have done so and on this point alone she failed repeatedly. Regardless of her culpability, her actions and inactions together represent to me a deliberate attempt to deceive the JACC Board of Directors and membership or at least obfuscate the true state of JACC's finances (on this count Mr. Scott, the JACC Treasurer is also guilty). Regardless of the outcome of the upcoming elections, I intend to seek the removal of the JACC Treasurer, the termination of all future employment of Ms. Gallas by JACC and to file a complaint against her with the Enforcement Division of the Minnesota Board of Accountancy.

Internal Controls Have a Soft Side

Why human frailty can foil even sure-fire internal controls

Internal controls are hard and soft. The hard controls comprise policies, procedures, and systems. These hard controls set the "standards" so to speak. If employees comply with policies and follow the procedures, the objectives of the internal controls can be met.

The soft controls are simply the competence, attention, and integrity of the people in an organization whose oversight helps to prevent and detect fraud. This was the basic premise introduced by John J. Hall of Hall Consulting, Inc., Chicago, in a presentation at the AICPA National Conference on Fraud, October 2-3, 2003 in Miami Beach, Florida. Along with Courtenay M. Thompson of Courtenay Thompson & Associates, Dallas, Texas, Hall offered "15 Reasons Internal Controls Break Down and What to Do about It."

First among the 15 reasons is "the process mentality." People with this mentality, according to Thompson, just go through the motions, the steps of the process, without thinking about what they're doing. He cited, for example, his experience with one organization whose accounts payable system required three executive signatures before a payment was made. In this instance, because of their inattention, the signers failed to notice that there was no payee on the check. Thompson thinks that perhaps one or more of the signers may have noticed the lack of a payee on the check. They assumed, however, that because others signed off on payment, it was all right, and therefore didn't question it.

The remedy for this reliance on process without thinking, Thompson advised, is for CPAs to educate clients (the executives) and to be aware of this mentality and its consequences when auditing.

Blind man's bluff

A second reason controls break down is blind trust. Managers may have too much faith in an employee, a faith often based on a relationship. The manager may have hired the person, trained him or her, or is related through family or some other kinship. Favored vendors are also sometimes given this blind trust. CPAs and their clients need to remember, Thompson says, that all fraud is done by those we trust and that trust is not a control.

Blindness, however, does not always result from unwarranted or even thoughtless trust. Sometimes it's deliberate. Willful blindness, choosing not to see or acknowledge a breakdown in controls, is a third reason controls break down. Hall cited an example of management's failure to question obvious red flags uncovered during an operational review of a distribution center. The number of units shipped per day and per shift was routinely charted. It was evident that during the period from December 26 through December 31, on the third shift there were not only more shipments, but also more overtime and more losses than in prior years. Despite the obvious signs of possible wrongdoing, the aberration was unquestioned. Hall also cautioned that CPAs are at legal risk if they choose to ignore such signs when working with a client.

Situational "un-" ethics

Sometimes wrongdoing goes unchallenged because of acceptance of the situation. Hall said that this failure may occur, for example, when managers rationalize not questioning suspicious or inappropriate activity by saying to themselves, "Who am I to tell them what they've been doing wrong? I just got here."

Controls may break down because of "situational incompetence." According to Thompson, such incompetence may arise when a significant organizational change takes place related to technology or a transfer of employees. For example, a manager of an activity now being outsourced may be managing contracts instead of people. When he or she challenges the appropriateness of an activity or a contract element, the outsourcing firm may respond, "It's standard in the industry." Inexperience may influence the manager's acceptance. The outsourcer's response, says Thompson, may not be a sign of fraud, but of trouble in the arrangement.

Me first

Controls often break down because firm members put their needs before those of the organization. Subordination of needs is one of the most prevalent causes of such breakdowns. Thompson cited an example of a salesperson who generated sales of $250,000 per quarter for three quarters. The checks received as evidence of sales would be identified later as "sent by mistake." However, reports of the stellar sales performance went up the organization's hierarchy without question. Why? This was good news for those who would also gain bonuses because of the salesperson's outstanding performance.

"Positional immunity," another reason, similarly is based in the perpetrator's putting his or her needs before the organization's. The rationalization for such behavior often is "Because of who I am, the rules don't apply to me."

Executives' use of the corporate jet to send children to college or to go on vacation are typical examples of such indifference. Hall cited an example of an executive who used the corporate jet to travel from the U.S. to London and kept it on call to avoid having to wait to return. Clients need to be made aware of how such behavior sets an example that encourages fraud in the organization.

Ignorance is remiss

Another reason controls break down is ignoring the fraud implications of policies and procedures. The reason managers may ignore these is that they simply don't know the implications. They don't know what they can and cannot ignore. Hall advises CPAs to assume managers and auditors may not know why certain policies and procedures provide controls to prevent and detect fraud and other wrongdoing.

Ignoring the fraud implications of reports is also a reason controls break down. For example, a report indicating an area is significantly over budget may be sending a signal that fraud is occurring. Behavioral indicators of fraud should not be ignored either. An employee living in a manner incongruous with his or her salary and without another explanation may be worth investigating.

Lack of time and information

Controls also break down when those responsible for exercising them fail to do so. Lack of time to do the control procedures may cause a control to fail. In such circumstances, those responsible may retreat to the process mentality cited above in the discussion of the first reason, which focuses on going through procedures without paying attention to what is in fact transpiring. Employees, knowing how very busy the responsible person is, may see this as opportunity to push through approvals for inappropriate or fraudulent transactions. Controls break down too because responsible employees lack information they need to assure the transactions are proper. For example, an approver may make payments without access to related contracts or may approve an invoice written in a foreign language that he or she doesn't understand.

Human frailty

Failure to enforce documentation requirements or to question "the strange, odd, and curious" is another reason controls break down. Such failure can often be explained by the fourteenth reason, conflict avoidance. Those responsible for seeing that employees comply with control policies and procedures may be reluctant to confront employees whose performance is poor or whose attitude is lackadaisical. If employees are adequately trained, directed, and supervised in their jobs, those who oversee them need to accept their responsibility not to tolerate poor performance.

Ethical, professional management sends a message down to all employees that they are expected be ethical and responsible in maintaining and applying internal controls. Fostering such a culture in an organization helps to deter fraud and other wrongdoing. Unfortunately, even in an organization that fosters ethical and responsible behavior, CPA consultants and their clients need to remember what Hall and Thompson offered as the fifteenth and final reason internal controls break down: "Those responsible for the control procedures or oversight are crooks!"

Ms. Hartfield,

As you know, the JACC re-scheduled elections are this coming Monday, January 12, 2009, at 6PM. The Committee wanted to make sure that you were planning to attend the elections and take minutes on behalf of the JACC Board.

The Nominations Committee agreed that minutes in the form of an outline would be appropriate (it would not be necessary to take extensive detail) in order to appropriately record the outcome of the elections.

Please let us know if you will be available; in the event you are not able to attend, we will need to make other arrangements for minute taking.

Subject: [JACC] Election Night (January 12) Goodies

Hello, neighbors!

All residents and property owners should have received a pink postcard by now announcing the re-scheduled JACC election for the board of directors. The election will be January 12 with a meet-and-greet with the candidates from 6 to 6:30 p.m. followed by the election activities at 6:30 p.m.

Two Nominating Committee members have volunteered to bake some cookies and brownies for the event. We are expecting a good turnout, so we thought we would ask the community if some of you might be willing to bring something, too. We anticipate, at most, 100-150 people. We'd like to limit it to foods that can be placed on a napkin (nothing messy or gooey).

Here are some suggestions:

- Cookies
- Brownies
- Crackers (and cheese?)
- Veggies such as baby carrots, celery
- Soda
- Bottled water
- Napkins

If you would be willing to bring something, could you let me know what you will bring? Then I can fill in any gaps to be sure we have enough of both liquid and solid refreshments. Thanks. You can contact me at:

I don't know

let's see what comes out from my email that i sent, I wonder if EB or Jerry will chime in. Also maybe if nothing comes of it (like a challenge or an objection) then we don't do anything. But if she or someone else challenges that fact that she isn't on the ballot then we can start opening the can of worms. I am completely comfortable that we did everything we could to contact her and give her ample amount of time to verify her job, plus she even started off the conversation "yes Hi oh I am so sorry, i have been so busy blah blah blah.." - so she knows that she is totally negligent in getting back to me.

If they can't prove they live/work here in a two or three week amount of time.. what kind of board member would they be anyways?

Let's sit back and see what happens - at least I did my part in filling the committee in on the conversation.

Hello all,

I just want to make the committee aware of a conversation I had today.

I called Jordan New Life to confirm arrangements and I was actually speaking with Tamara Hardy. She must have thought I was calling for her because started by apologizing for not getting back to me, she had been so extremely busy, but she talked to Steve the other day and got everything taken care of.

I was confused and asked "who is steve" - she said "steve jackson, he is a board member". I said "oh, well what did you get to steve?" - she said " well he called here to verify that I work here, he knows I work here".

I explained to her that Steve wasn't working on the nominations committee so I don't know why he called her, but that unfortunately she wasn't going to be a candidate on the ballot because she had not responded to the committee's request for employment verification. She said "oh, well i guess Steve was asked to call, I don't know, but he knows I work here cause we do alot with the boys and girls club."

I again explained that to make the process fair to all candidates and to follow the by-laws we were requiring documentation on everyone's eligibility. I told her that even though she is not going to be a candidate on this ballot, that if she brings proof of employment on Monday night, she can take part as a voter. And that she is eligible to work with the organization by volunteering on committee's and I instructed her to write in to the board chair and request to be considered for any future vacancies. She sounded okay with this information - she didn't express any objections, she was pleasant and she continued to help me confirm the time & microphone issues.

I was just surprised to hear her saying Steve Jackson had called her.

take care,

MG

The whole idea of community engagement is to start with a cadre of people (the board) and expand outward. Ideally, all committee chairs, unless specifically prohibited by the by-laws, would be non-board members. Staff is supposed to support, not supplant, member participation. Directors should be encouraged to participate in all activities and committees, but need not lead and/or organize them.

I think that is the appropriate place for this to be introduced. Perhaps folks can be reminded of the Housing Meeting on Tuesday at Monday night's General Membership meeting. The problem I have with items that are recommended at the Housing Committee meeting is that they often don't go any farther than that or are overruled/ignored later on. Hopefully, this will change after the elections Monday night.

I don't see any errors or concerns.

If the minutes required are just basic actions taken - I have no problem taking the minutes - I can start taking minutes at 630 when I am done at the sign in table. This way we keep the committee work inside the committee for consistency sake.

Thanks Kip for working hard on the brochure - it looks great!

Dear Nominations Committee,

Attached is the brochure that we put together to pass out at the meeting.

We are on a short timeline, so please respond back and let us know if there are any concerns.

The plan is to start printing them at 5 O'clock sharp.

I have not heard back from Ms. Hartfield, the JACC Sectary, so do we want to go to Plan B and invite someone to take minutes at the elections?

Subject: Re-Schedule Elections Minutes

Date: Wed, 7 Jan 2009 12:57:13 -0600

Ms. Hartfield,

As you know, the JACC re-scheduled elections are this coming Monday, January 12, 2009, at 6PM. The Committee wanted to make sure that you were planning to attend the elections and take minutes on behalf of the JACC Board.

The Nominations Committee agreed that minutes in the form of an outline would be appropriate (it would not be necessary to take extensive detail) in order to appropriately record the outcome of the elections.

Please let us know if you will be available; in the event you are not able to attend, we will need to make other arrangements for minute taking.

Thank you,
MKB obo JACC Nominations Committee

Subject: JACC Meeting

Hi neighbors,

This Monday is the rescheduled date for the JACC election. Many of you came out in October and helped us get this second chance at electing a legally vetted slate of candidates for the JACC Board. I am hoping that you will all come out into the cold Monday night and help us get some hard working neighbors elected to the board.

On Dec. 19th, the current board was forced by the city into opening the financial records to the membership. All I can say is, we have alot of work to do. Myself and five other neighbors are willing to put in the time and effort to get our neighborhood organization back on track. We need JACC now more than ever. Many of our neighbors are facing foreclosure and the loss of their jobs. We need the strong voice and public platform that JACC could and should provide. We also need the assets that JACC has left in the Phase II plan to help if we can.

I am asking you all to come to Jordan New Life Church, 25th and Newton, on Monday, Jan 12th at 6 PM to vote for six new directors for the JACC board. There are eight candidates, but I am asking you to vote for six of us. David Haddy, Todd Heintz, Robert Hudson, Tyrone Jaramillo, Vladimir Monroe and myself. We all live in the Jordan neighborhood and want to bring the community back into the Jordan Area COMMUNITY Council. We have all pledged to abide by the by-laws and the Citizen's Participation Agreement as well as the state statutes governing non-profit organization. We will bring back the JACC FORUM.

This meeting is just about the election, although Lt. Jeff Rugel and possibly Insp. Mike Martin will also be there to give you a run-down of what is going on in the neighborhood and answer any questions you may have while the ballots are counted. Please join us. If you would like to bring some goodies or something to drink to share with you neighbors, that would also be appreciated, although not necessary.

See you all Monday night.

On 12/26/08 I have made the following request to the Board Chair.

“I am requesting that staff put together a master list of all board and committee meeting schedules for the calendar year of 2009 (describing the day, date, time, location, and chairmanships of ALL scheduled meetings) and that copies of the list be made available to everyone attending our January 12th elections.”

This request has gone unanswered without any acknowledgement whatsoever. I now believe we need to do this on our own. Can I get some help with this?

Subject: Congratulations!

Now that we've won, where are we going? Just thought I'd share some ideas.

I think we all agree, Jerry has to go.

We need to to reopen the election of board officers. Following the November board meeting, I sent the following grievance to EB Brown:

Grievance #1

At the November 12, 2008 board meeting, the JACC board voted to extend the terms of office of two board members whose terms have expired. The members in questions were elected October 19, 2006. Two years from that date their term expired. This is in direct violation of the following JACC by-laws

Art V, Sec.1c. DIRECTORS TENURE IN OFFICE Directors shall serve a period of two years and will be elected at the General Membership meeting in October.

Sec.2a. The Board shall have up to fifteen (15) and not fewer than five (5) members.

Sec.2c. ROBERT'S RULES--All meetings shall be conducted according to stated ground rules, but the meeting facilitator may impose Robert's Rules of Order if it is deemed necessary

Since the by-laws do not address the problem incurred at the October annual meeting when the JACC executive director attempted to impose an illegal and incomplete ballot upon the voting membership, it would seem that this is one of those times when it is "deemed necessary" to impose Robert's Rules of Order. According to the 10th Edition (the latest first published October 2000) :

"The unqualified wording "for a term ofyear(s)" should be avoided, because at the end of that time there would be no officers if new ones had not been elected."

While this may be an unfortunate use of terminology according to Robert's Rules, it is the terminology currently in place in the JACC by-laws. No election took place, therefore, the officers whose terms are up, are no longer board members. However, in the case of JACC, this does not leave the organization without a viable board to conduct the business of the organization. Nine board members remain active on the board with unexpired terms. According to the by-laws, the board needs a minimum of just five members in order to be viable.

As a result of this illegal action by the Board, two ex-board members were allowed to vote making a difference in the election of board officers.

The actions taken by the board at the November meeting set a dangerous precedent for any board, especially an elected one. It is undemocratic to say the least and we really have to overturn it.

We cannot really go forward until we find out where we are. I am also do not want to be held responsible for the errors of past board members and employees without knowing what they are and getting them remedied. Dottie has suggested that a committee be set up to thoroughly go through the books and records and see what's what. This would entail more than just the financial records, although they would be a prime focus. She has volunteered to help, and I suggest that we accept her help since she was our ED before all this foolishness started.

Dottie also suggested that we get a newsletter out as soon as possible. I think this would be beneficial and doable within the next 4 to 6 weeks.

I have been contacted by Roberta Englund from Fowell who wants to partner with JACC on a grant application for the Great Streets Program. She is looking at Lowry Ave. I think we can also include Broadway and Penn as well. The deadline is Feb 27. Roberta said she will write it up. We need to let the north side know that the elephant has left the hood and JACC will now play nicely with its neighbors again.

We need to plan a board retreat. JACC used to have them every year. We take a whole day (Saturday) and bring people in to teach us how to have an effective board. Also, have folks from NRP and the city come in and explain how we work with those organizations. We also take time to go over what the board priorities will be for the coming year, how to raise money and what activities we want to have during the year and more. I would suggest we do this ASAP, but not any later than February.

We talked about securing the property. I have a call into Stu Ackerberg and will talk to him about changing the locks. In the meantime, if Jerry is foolish enough to remove property from the office or destroy property or records, I suggest we make a police report and open a criminal investigation. It will help our case against him.

These are just a VERY few of the things we have to do. I suggest that we will be without staff for several months. This will necessitate extra time on our part to keep things running. I am willing to spend time in this effort, and I'm sure others will, too.

I don't think there really is a 'best way' to do this. I sent an email to Lt Rugel to see if he could be there just in case. At the time, the closed session was scheduled for the beginning of the meeting and I advised him of that. He just replied to me that he had been expecting my request and will be there at 6 tonight.

He also forwarded a web site to me, Adventures of Johnny North side, and the word is out about Jerry. I expect the STrib to show up as well. We might as well get this crap over with. It may be the only thing we accomplish tonight, but at least it will be done with and we can hopefully move on.

I think Johnny North side hits the nail on the head when it comes to a major problem with JACC. Please read his article. For those of you who are new to Jordan or to JACC, please be advised that BJ (before Jerry), JACC was working on housing and development issues. We were also working with the other neighborhood organizations to get these things done. I am hoping that we can get back on that trail very soon.

Please grit your teeth, have the Tums handy and stick with us for a couple of bumpy meetings. Thanks, guys.

The the story about Monday night.

For what it's worth, I agree with Dottie that there will be more traction if the officer's are changed first, then have the closed session at the end.

I won't be there unfortunately since I have a 6 week class starting tonight. So take good notes for me!

I know I'm not on the board, but I would reiterate what I said last night. I think you will be on firmer ground if you go for the re-election of officers first. Once that is done, the new officers will be in charge of the meeting. If you go for the closed meeting first, the current chair is in charge and can simply refuse to go there. Also, having the closed session at the beginning of the meeting is kind of tough on those community members who attend since they will be closed out right at the beginning. Is the board going to leave the room for the closed session? Or are you going to kick the community members out into the cold? Just thinking about the logistics.

If you wait until you have a new election of officers, then you can set the direction of the meeting rather than hoping the chair goes along with the change. You play from a place of authority and power.

Those are my thoughts.

Not a soldier mona give you no break
Not even you idren naw give you no break
Hehe
(CHORUS x2)
Why did you have to act so mean
Don't you know you're human being
Born of a mother with the love of a father
Reflections come and reflections go
I know sometimes you want to let go
Hey hey hey
I know sometimes you want to let go
Bad boys, bad boys
A whatcha gonna do, whatcha gonna do
When they come for you
(You're too bad, you're too rude)
(You're too bad, you're too rude)
Bad boys, bad boys
A whatcha gonna do, whatcha gonna do
When they come for you
You chuck it on that one
You chuck it on this one
You chuck it on your mother and
You chuck it on your father
You chuck it on your brother and
You chuck it on your sister
You chuck it on that one and
You chuck it on me
CHORUS
(repeat to the end)

Great job Megan on getting the minutes completed in a timely fashion.

Unless there are any other objections, alterations or comments, I think Megan should post the minutes.

I am attaching an electronic copy of the totals from the first ballot. There have been several request for the tallys, and I would like the committee to decide if we release the information.

Any thoughts?

Here is a draft of board meeting minutes based upon my notes. I really just tried to take notes on motions/vote counts - even that was unclear at times.

The discussion was too hard to take notes because of all the chaos - community members shouting - people taking floor from others, etc.

Hi Kevin,

First I'd like to thank you for acknowledging that Jordan (JACC) was really making strides at one point in time. In my opinion we haven't seen any progress on neighborhood and livability issues in two or three years. Matter of fact some could say there has been an extreme backslide.

I don't even know where to start as far as answering your question about how did this all happen. I am in no way an objective observer so anything I say is going to be very biased, and to be honest there are a few people involved in some of the controversy right now that I really don't have anything nice to say at all, so I should say nothing.

I do feel very optimistic about new leadership that has taken the reins of JACC and those leaders are going to be extremely inclusive of ALL Jordan community members and those new leaders will also be un-relenting in their position for what is right for the organization.

I also feel very optimistic that as this power struggle continues or deepens, those who were voted out of power in a legal and legitimate way, the more they are going to expose themselves as far as questionable money management, poor job performance and poor judgement. And that is a large part of the reasons that some neighbors have been so adamant about a change in leadership within the organization.

Megan,

I've been reading the posts on Johnny Northside, but is it possible to give us a brief idea how all this happened? There was a time when Jordan seemed so focused and was almost a model for the rest of the Northside as to what could be accomplished when folks were brought together and worked towards a common goal. You guys really had your act together. How did this shift occur?

I don't know if this will help or not with the legality of the officer elections in January, but I'm in the middle of writing an article for my blog (www.jordanlivability.wordpress.com), and as I described what happened in November, I remembered (and am writing about) something that happened that adds legitimacy to the January process. Do you remember what happened when no one would agree to be the board secretary? Shannon Hartfiel ended up agreeing to serve until the January meeting when the new board members would be seated and a new secretary could be elected. I remember that quite clearly. EB thanked her for agreeing to continue on. Does anyone else remember that? Doesn't that imply that the 2008 board was clearly open to the idea of a January election for at least one office?

I will as much as I can remember. It's probably going to be a summation of the vote tally. It will be pretty hard to give a blow by blow of who said what, even if I was writing it all down at the time. Since we were discussing a personnel issue, I don't know how much we can put into the public minutes.

Here is a draft of board meeting minutes based upon my notes. I really just tried to take notes on motions/vote counts - even that was unclear at times.

The discussion was too hard to take notes because of all the chaos - community members shouting - people taking floor from others, etc.

Daniel Rother to EB Brown; Poppycock!

A public response from Daniel Rother to Ms. EB Brown's letter distributed by Mr. Steve Jackson at the JACC Press Conference on January 17, 2009.

It is very disappointing that a member of JACC would be so disgruntled they would come up with such poppycock. The letter goes on about the correct method removing Board Director, the implying that such a thing happened or was attempted. The truth is that there was no call for the removal of any board members and no board members were removed.

How it really happened:

The old executive committee, and in particular Mr. Jerry Moore, undermined the October 2008 election process to the extent that the annual elections had to be postponed. The City of Minneapolis and NRP had already advised that if the elections went forward under the questionable conditions that had been created, they would have been invalidated. At the annual meeting in October 2008 the membership in attendance overwhelmingly voted to postpone the elections due to the circumstances described above. Following the postponement of the annual elections the old board illegally and unnecessarily extended the terms of two board members and in the absence of an election and then voted in and seated new officers.

The illegal extension of the terms of two board members was done in violation of JACC bylaws which clearly state that board members shall serve a term of only two years. Neither one of the board members receiving an extended term was a board officer and their board tenure had ended as called for under the bylaws. If the selection of new officers had not taken place in November the board would have still held a sufficient number of directors to meet the minimum complement required under the law. Further, the bylaws provide for new officers to be elected after the annual election so that the new board elects and seats their own officers at the first board meeting following those elections. It is that sequence of events described in the bylaws that is integral and necessary to this process. As the annual elections had not yet taken place, the elections of new board officers should not have been undertaken. Doing so was a deliberate action and had it been allowed to stand would have served to deprive any board members who would be elected in the January 2009 election their right to participate in the election of their new officers.

As a point of clarification, an assistant Minneapolis City Attorney has provided an opinion to NRP indicating that the election of new board officers following the January 2009 elections was not only a legal and proper action, but that it would have been irresponsible for the board not done so.

It is unfortunate that some members of the board (Ben Myers and EB Brown in particular) and a small part of community have chosen to characterize this as mutiny. This is participatory democracy at the grass roots level and in a democracy majority rules. The fact that the old officers would describe and publicize this as "mutiny" is a disservice to the community they claim to serve and a distortion of the truth by a disgruntled few who failed to get their way.

After new officers were elected on January 14, it was discovered that the old officers, like thieves in the night, came in and removed from the JACC offices at 2009 James Avenue North computers, fax/copier, financial documents, and the check book and check register. This action was taken without board knowledge or approval and can only be considered out right theft. The removal of this property has rightfully been reported to the Minneapolis Police Department as a theft. This type of vigilantism is especially troubling because we expected better from someone like Ben Myers who is a licensed attorney (at the time of this writing). Ben Myers has announced publicly that he has knowledge of the location of the property that has been reported stolen. I speculate that the level of desperation shown here is directly in proportion to the level of malfeasance that will be discovered when we retrieve the records. Mr. Ben Myers and Ms. EB Brown have additionally failed to disclose what authority they believe they have to act outside of a board meeting and remove any JACC property from the established JACC offices.

JACC did hold a regularly scheduled board meeting in January and it did not adjourn until the time ran out at about 7:45pm. There was a portion of the meeting that was closed to the public to discuss an employee's conduct, which I will not comment on in a public forum. This was on the agenda (nothing hidden here) and that agenda was adopted by the majority in a vote by the Board Members in a public meeting. It must also be recognized that part of the Executive Committee's role is to "propose" an agenda for the board but it does not become the agenda unless it is adopted by the Board of Directors, by a majority vote.

As for JACC being the fiscal agent for any other organization; that action was taken without board prior knowledge or approval. To make matters worse, Board Members have not been made privy to any substantive financial information including bank statements dated between July of 2008 and today. In fact Mr. Jerry Moore reported that he has sublet the office in the past to other businesses and done so without proper disclosure or documentation to the Board of Directors and also includes hired and paid employees unbeknownst to the board. It also appears now that Mr. Ben Meyers or Mr. Jerry Moore may have told the counselors (for whom JACC may be the fiscal agent) they had to be out of the office by Friday, this action did not come from the current officers as it is alluded to in Ms. EB Brown's letter.

It is also worth mentioning that no member from the old board has brought forward any youth programs in the past year except in secret meetings that the full board was not invited to and no recorded minutes of such meetings have been made available other board members despite multiple requests to provide minutes from those meetings.

I sincerely hope wish and encourage the old officers to bring forward any grievances they may have or to seek mediation rather than to continuing on this injurious path of acting outside the law and further damaging their credibility in the community. Mr. Myers please return to the community the property reported as stolen from the JACC office at 2009 James Avenue North.

On another note Jane Northside failed to do her research in a recent article before going to print. If she had she would have know that every candidate went though the same process for vetting. Just sending your autobiography to the nominations committee was not good enough for any candidate to get on the ballot. All candidates had to verify their residency, or that they worked in the neighborhood, or that owned property or a business here. Documentation could come from a Hennepin County property record, or a written statement from an employer or landlord etc.

Unfortunately one individual repeatedly was sent requests for such written documentation over and over and over again in writing and in documented phone calls and failed to respond at all until the vetting process was

In my recent opinion piece Media Pays to Play, I wrote concerning the media's interpretation of the news. It didn't take long to illustrate on the lack of analysis and objectivity of the media. Though the mainstream media chooses not to touch the imbroglia occurring in the Jordan Neighborhood. Depending with whom you speak concerning JACC (Jordan Area Community Council), some local bloggers are giving somewhat of a one-sided version of what occurred at the JACC press conference on Saturday January 17th.

Subject: JACC Office

On Jan 21, 2009, a recently fired JACC employee contacted COMCAST and had the phone and internet service to our office disconnected. While this is an inconvenience, it will be back in service with the same phone number, 612-886-3202, on Jan 27th. In the meantime, please disregard any notices you may see giving out a new JACC phone number or address.

This same disgruntled employee attempted to have the electricity turned off which would result in an unheated house. This was also unsuccessful. The postal service is also aware that the legal address of our organization is still 2009 James Ave N. Illegally removing the mail from the JACC mail box is also a Federal offense.

The MPD Fourth Precinct personnel are aware of the situation and who the city recognizes as the rightful JACC board. Since the recent actions by this former employee could result in charges of criminal damage to property, I would ask all folks in the neighborhood to keep an eye on the JACC house and report any suspicious activity by calling 911 immediately.

Thank you.

Hi Megan,
 Your response to Mr. Jacobson was right on. By the way, I have done a little amateur language analysis and based on the use of some key words and expressions, I am confident that I know the true identity of Mr. Jacobson. The most outstanding is the word CONCERNING. This word is seldom used in this way but I have seen it used frequently by only one person. There are other cues. I will explain later. suffice it to say, the findings are very concerning to me.

Ms. Goodmundson,

For seem reason or another my request to be added to this group has been rejected. I thought that this group was for the neighborhood, am I wrong? Is this just for a few people and not all of us?

Maybe there was a mistake. How can I get added? Who do I need to talk to in order to get on this group?

Hi John,

I help moderate the yahoo group for JACC.

The phone at the office will be working soon, in the mean time is there a message you would like me to pass on to someone? If you are new, feel free to ask me any questions and I will see what I can do to help you get connected or pointed in the right direction.

The JACC yahoo group is for sharing and discussing Jordan neighborhood specific things, although we do use it to make announcements or share info that is for the general north minneapolis area.

welcome,

Megan G

I had no idea that you all were so paranoid. For a city councilman to agree to me not being able to participate is odd. Enjoy your mickey mouse club and don't let the "Boogyman" get cha, oh wait he already has. Make sure that you all drink your Jesus Juice. I think I know what side I belong to. We are concerned about people gaining access and sabotaging our communications since this has occurred in the past. I'm sure can understand this. I am, however, forwarding your request to the group as a whole. While your name is not familiar to me, perhaps it is known by other members whom we know and they will be willing to vouch for you and get you onto the group sooner.

Ms. Goodmundson,

I find it very concerning and in fact disingenuous to not allow me to participate in the very community in which I live in. Please allow me to access this public forum so that I may be able to participate in my community. I have Cc'd Bob Cooper who I believe is your oversight for this website. Additionally, I have Cc'd the JACC secretary who I believe will agree that I should be able to participate. I am very upset that you have restricted me and in effect silenced my voice. I would appreciate an opportunity to speak to whomever is in charge of this organization to tell them how you have violated my basic constitutional rights. How dare you; I just want to participate.

I'll take a stab at this . The members of the committee are Dennis and Alex Wagner, Megan Goodmanson, Ann Yin, Dottie Titus, Todd Heintz and Keith Reitman. In the past, the Forum was held on the the Thursday of the month. It would be nice if we could have one in March. The Jordan-New life Church is probably not a good choice for holding the event since many of the board members are in litigation with one of their elders. Perhaps St Anne's Senior Place would be an option, although that's just a suggestion. there is no money for food although postage my be available for some postcards and I do have a mailing list. Any other questions?

And about you having no idea what you are doing - you are full of it! And I meant to tell you what a nice job you did at the board meeting, and with the financial stuff that you had to offer, what a tough job you and Anne have right now trying to piece things together.

Are you subscribed to the JACC list? if not, I can send you an invite.

If you note from the planned agenda, one of the items is the future meeting schedule so I don't know what the regular schedule will be at this time. If you are not the person who does this, let me know please. It should be clear that I have no idea what I am doing.

Now that's laughable. Dan Rother is Kip Browne's "boy"???? And he goes on to give his "word" on something... Now that's priceless... I could take that and 10 of the property transactions Mr. Moore was involved with and STILL not be able to buy a cup of coffee. To coin a phrase - "stupid is as stupid does", I think would be appropriate here. Mr. Jackson rather reminds me of my male Chesapeake Retriever Abe. When taking him for a walk, he attempts to "pee" (thus asserting his dominance) on every frigging thing I walk past.

It's a great attribute if you're a dominant male dog, but a losey attribute I would suspect, as a qualification for a board member of a neighborhood organization. Apparently, Mr. Jackson wasn't able to attend any of those expensive "board member training retreats" held during his tenure at JACC.

Me wonders what damages Ben Myers would currently be seeking if any of the "usual suspects" would have made such a statement to him????

I'd like to personally offer-up a "full-Monty" to Mr. (I use this term loosely) Jackson. As that is about what he is entitled to at this point.

Kip - this is good info to know and to be reminded of the serious problems that our neighborhood organization and it's members are still enduring - multiple lawsuits, etc. And how confusing (and scary?) it might be when you get an email from someone who is suing you that ends in something like ".. and I won't ask it twice, you have my WORD on that" - it could be unsettling for you.

Thanks for adding more to the context and it's something we as neighbors and an organization can learn and grow from.

My understanding of the JACC yahoo-group when I joined was that it was a forum for people concerned about Jordan issues to voice them to others who may also be interested.

In that spirit, I opened this discussion because I had no context for the random and unsolicited email I received from a former board member who is currently suing the JACC executive committee and JACC. Instead of judging and characterizing the context of the email myself, I thought it better to let the group comment – an inclusion technique I picked up from the board training this past March. Indeed, it has been very helpful to receive people's responses – both the positive and the negative – to get a sense where folks stand on the issue.
